HI YO, KIDS!

THE LONE RANGER and SILVER

TONTO and TAKA

Now you can build these new Aurora hobby kits of me and my Indian pal Tonto!

That famous team from the West just rode into your local hobby shop! You've thrilled to their exploits as "pictures" on TV, in the movies, and in comic books. Now you can see them in "3D" when you add them to your collection of 'action' kits by Aurora. The masked man comes with his valiant steed Silver—Tonto is shown with his faithful mascot, the eagle Taka. Take it from Tonto, they're exciting to build, and heap big fun to display!

As a counselor, I was quite perturbed by the worrisome look that crossed one of my little camper's face as he read a letter from home. "Well," he explained with a sigh, "it's about my kid brother who stayed home. I just wonder what kind of a monster he's going to grow up to be—because my mother says in her letter that I won't hardly recognize him when I come back. While I've been away, he's grown another foot!"

When father came home from work, little Joey's mother greeted him with a peck on his cheek and a question: "Do you know that unbreakable toy you gave our boy yesterday?"

"Why, of course," said father. "Now you're not going to tell me he broke it already?"

"No, dear—but he broke all his other toys with it!"

Nancy Hodson, Denver, Colo.

When six-year old Bobby bawled that his little toy parachute had blown away, his fat father made an effort to retrieve it on the roof. He climbed a ladder and no sooner managed to grab the chute when he toppled backwards and slammed to the ground. As the ambulance attendants placed him on a stretcher, the fat man muttered, "Sorry that I'm such a heavyweight."

To which one of the attendants, noting he still clutched the chute, responded, "I'm sure you are, and I'll bet you're sorry you jumped with that itsy-bitsy parachute!"

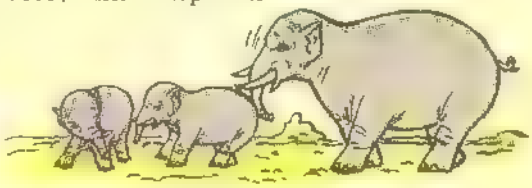
I asked my class, "What do elephants have that no other animals have?"

I expected at least one bright pupil to reply, "Trunks." But instead the whole class chorused, "Little elephants!"



Another time, I asked little Leonard what drawing exercises he'd done. Leonard extended a blank sheet of paper. "What is this supposed to be?" I asked, puzzled.

"It's a cow feeding on the grass," he replied.

"But where is the grass?"

"The cow ate it all."

"And where is the cow?"

"She went to another meadow because all the grass was gone!"

Caroline's mother beamed. Every time the music started in the dancing school, her same little partner dashed across the floor to be the first to ask her to dance. How popular her daughter was! she thought. During a refreshment break, Caroline's mother asked, "Dear, why does that same boy choose you each time?"

'Oh,' explained the girl, "I'm telling him a continued murder story!"
